Probe into fatal fire continues

By Examiner Staff

Investigators will not likely have any new information on last weekend's fatal fire on Herbert Street until early in the new year, the fire department said yesterday.

Trent Gervais, acting fire chief, said the cause of the fire has not yet been determined.

"There probably won't be any new information until the new year," he said. "Crews are still investigating."

Three-year-old Ava Storey died in the townhouse fire, which left 36 people without homes.

Peterborough Housing Corporation CEO Darlene Cook said most of the families had permanent housing by yesterday.

Jodi DeNoble, community emergency management co-ordinator for the city, said there has been an overwhelming response to the call for donations of clothing, furniture, and home accessories.

The immediate needs of the families have been met, she said. However, there is still a need for large appliances including fridges, stoves, washers and dryers that are in excellent working condition.

To make such a donation, call 742-7777 ext. 2803.

There is also an ongoing need for non-perishable food, which is being accepted through Kawartha Food Share, at 665 Neal Dr.
